

INTERESTED IN A CAREER AT CENX?

Company vision

A leading provider of software solutions for the telecoms industry, CENX changes how service providers view their networks. Today's networks have become complex, ever-evolving systems as the demand for services rapidly grows. Mobile, IoT, and cloud technologies have inundated service providers with a massive amount of data, causing them to feel that they're always one step behind their network. The only way for them to get ahead and prepare for new challenges is to change their approach to network oversight. CENX's solution continuously ingests all of an operator's network data, across multiple domains, and physical and virtual infrastructure, and places it into a comprehensive, single view. With CENX's deep network insight, service providers can pinpoint and prevent faults, optimize capacity, and spot new opportunities.

Our Path of Innovation

CENX is built on a history of innovation. In 2009, CENX started as a Carrier Ethernet Neutral Exchange. To fully serve exchange customers, software was developed in-house to automate the manual, time-consuming processes of ordering, provisioning, monitoring, and assuring data connectivity services. Eventually, the benefits of our software were recognized, and in 2012, we pivoted and became a software vendor.

The CENX Advantage

At CENX, we believe leading edge, distributed cloud computing technology is the best way to revolutionize the delivery of new data services in the telecom industry. CENX's solution is built using state-of-the-art software technologies: distributed database design, client-server architecture, functional programming, real-time search methodologies, and virtualized computing – all of which combine to provide a massively horizontally-scalable infrastructure. An infrastructure of this sort is essential to harness telecom big data and perform real-time analytics to drive actionable intelligence.
